Reproductive Rights and Family Planning

- Promoted the use of contraceptives to reduce unwanted pregnancies. - Emphasized education for women to make informed choices. - Believed birth control was a tool for social and economic improvement.

Eugenics and the Concept of the "New Race" also held beliefs about race and heredity that have been widely scrutinized. The "New Race" Concept - Sanger envisioned a "new race" of healthier, more capable humans. - Her conception of the "new race" was tied to reducing the birthrate of those deemed "unfit" and encouraging reproduction among the "fit." - This idea was influenced by progressive eugenics, which aimed to improve societal health through selective reproductive practices.

While her advocacy for birth control aimed to reduce suffering and improve societal health, her association with eugenics complicates her legacy.

Alignment with Eugenic Thought
